Carbon Soil Benchmarking Monitoring Project in the NAR

NACC has undertaken a carbon soil benchmarking program during the past two years. Though the program has now been suspended due to changes in the Federal and State Government natural resource management target, NACC is aware there is interest in the Northern Agricultural Region (NAR) for such a service.

Benchmarking current soil carbon levels will prepare the region to capitalise on soil carbon opportunities under climate change legislation.

NACC is offering to manage this project across the region if there are enough land managers interested in participating and financially underwriting the project.

You can find articles about soil and soil carbon on the NACC website www.nacc.com.au including many provided by Christine Jones and ASCAS (Australian Soil Carbon Accreditation Scheme)

Please fill in the following expression of interest and return to Stanley Yokwe, NACC's Landcare Facilitator on lf@nacc.com.au

Expression of Interest

I would be interested in participating in a soil carbon benchmarking project with other land holders around the Northern Agricultural Region.
